(2) The International Protection Agency shall register the making of an application for international protection within three working days:

Provided that, when an application for international protection is made to other authorities likely to receive such applications, the International Protection Agency shall register such applications within six working days:

(3) An application for international protection shall be deemed to have been lodged once the prescribed form has reached the International Protection Agency. Such application shall be lodged in person and, or at a designated place.

For the purpose of this regulation, the International Protection Agency shall ensure that the applicant has an effective opportunity to lodge the application as soon as possible.

Provided that with regard to an unaccompanied minor, the appointed representative referred to in regulation 18 has the right to lodge an application for international protection on behalf of the unaccompanied minor, if on the basis of an individual assessment of the minor's personal situation, the appointed representative is of the opinion that the minor may be in need of protection.

6. (1) The International Protection Agency shall ensure that the examination procedure is concluded as soon as possible, without prejudice to an adequate and complete examination.

Time limits for the examination procedure.

(2) The International Protection Agency shall also ensure that the examination procedure is concluded within six months of the lodging of the application.

(3) Where an application is subject to the procedure laid down in EU Regulation 604/2013 establishing the criteria and mechanisms for determining the Member State responsible for examining an application for international protection lodged in one of the Member States by a third-country national or a stateless person, the time limit of six months shall start to run from the day the Maltese authorities are determined as the Member State responsible in accordance with that Regulation, the applicant is on Maltese territory and has been taken in charge by the International Protection Agency.

(4) The International Protection Agency may extend the time limit of six months for a period not exceeding a further nine months, where:

- (a) complex issues of fact and, or law are involved;
- (b) a large number of third-country nationals or stateless persons simultaneously apply for international protection, making it very difficult in practice to conclude the procedure within the six-month time limit;
- (c) where the delay can clearly be attributed to the failure of the applicant to comply with his obligations under regulation 4:

Provided that the International Protection Agency may extend the time limit referred to in this regulation by a maximum period of three months, to ensure an adequate and complete examination of the application for international protection.

(5) When the examination procedure cannot be concluded due to an uncertain situation in the country of origin, the International Protection Agency may postpone concluding the examination procedure. In such a case, the International Protection Agency shall:

- (a) conduct reviews of the situation in that country of origin at least every six months;
- (b) inform the applicants concerned within a reasonable time of the reasons for the postponement;

- (a) be informed of the delay; or
- (b) receive, upon his request, information on the time frame within which the decision on his application is to be expected:

Provided that such information shall not constitute an obligation for the International Protection Agency towards the applicant concerned, to take a decision within that timeframe.

(8) The International Protection Agency may decide to prioritize an examination of an application for international protection, where:

- (a) the application is likely to be well-founded;
- (b) the applicant is vulnerable or is in need of special procedural guarantees, in particular unaccompanied minors.

7. (1) The International Protection Agency shall assess within a reasonable period of time after an application for international protection is made whether the applicant is in need of special procedural guarantees:

Applicants in need of special procedural guarantees.

Provided that the International Protection Agency may, for the purpose of this regulation, lay down a procedure with a view to determining whether a person is in need of special procedural guarantees. The outcome of such an assessment shall be inserted in the applicant's file.

(2) The International Protection Agency shall ensure that where an applicant has been identified as an applicant in need of special procedural guarantees, such applicant will be provided with adequate support throughout the whole procedure.

(3) Whenever it is considered that an applicant requires special procedural guarantees as a consequence of having suffered torture, rape or other serious form of psychological, physical or sexual violence, the accelerated procedure referred to in article 23 of the Act shall not be applied.

(4) The need for special procedural guarantees shall also be addressed even if such need becomes apparent at a later stage and even without the necessity of initiating new procedures.

8. (1) The International Protection Agency shall ensure that applications for international protection are neither rejected nor excluded from examination on the sole ground that they have not been made as soon as possible.

Requirements for the examination of applications.

(2) When examining applications for international protection, the International Protection Agency shall first determine whether the applicants qualify as refugees and if such applicants do not qualify, determine whether the applicants are eligible for subsidiary protection.

(3) The International Protection Agency shall ensure that decisions on applications for international protection are taken after an appropriate examination and that -

- (a) applications are examined and decisions are taken individually, objectively and impartially;
- (b) precise and up-to-date information is obtained from EASO and UNHCR as well as other relevant international human rights organisations as to the general situation prevailing in the countries of origin of the applicants and, where necessary, in countries through which they have transited and that such information is made available to the personnel responsible for examining applications and taking decisions:

Provided that the information referred to in this paragraph shall be accessible to the International Protection Appeals Tribunal for the purpose of taking a decision on an application for international protection;

- (c) the personnel examining applications and taking decisions have acquired the appropriate knowledge in the field of asylum and refugee law;
- (d) the International Protection Agency has the possibility to seek advice, whenever necessary, from experts on particular issues, such as medical, cultural, religious, child-related or gender issues.

(4) The International Protection Agency shall provide for rules concerning the translation of documents relevant for the examination of applications.

Examination of facts and circumstances.

9. (1) The International Protection Agency may, from time to time, lay down the rules and guidelines applicable to the procedure for the determination of an application.

(2) The International Protection Agency shall examine the application as soon as possible and shall, in the assessment of the credibility of an applicant's claim, endeavour to gather all relevant information that will enable him to make a recommendation taking due account of the applicant's cooperation in the proceedings.

(3) The applicant shall submit as soon as possible all elements needed to substantiate the application for international protection. Such elements shall consist of the applicant's statements and all the documentation at the applicant's disposal regarding the applicant's age, background, including that of relevant relatives, identity, nationality, country and place of previous residence, previous applications for international protection, travel routes, travel documents and the reasons for applying for international protection.

(4) For the purpose of this regulation, the International Protection Agency or its representative shall retain all such elements for as long as necessary.

(5) The International Protection Agency shall assess the relevance of the elements referred to in sub-regulation (4). When aspects of the applicant's statements are not supported by documentary or other evidence, such aspects shall not need confirmation if:

- (a) the applicant has made a genuine effort to substantiate his application;
- (b) all relevant elements at the applicant's disposal have been submitted and a satisfactory explanation has been given regarding any lack of other relevant elements;
- (c) the applicant's statements are found to be coherent and plausible and do not run counter to specific and general information available and relevant to the applicant's case;

(d) the applicant has applied for international protection at the earliest possible time, unless the applicant can demonstrate good reason for not having done so; and

(e) the general credibility of the applicant has been established.

(6) The assessment of the application for international protection shall be carried out on an individual basis taking into account:

(a) all relevant facts as they relate to the country of origin at the time of taking a decision on the application, including laws and regulations of the country of origin and the manner in which they are applied;

(b) the relevant statements and documents presented by the applicant including information on whether the applicant has been or may be subject to persecution or serious harm;

(c) the individual position and personal circumstances of the applicant, including factors such as background, gender and age, so as to assess whether, on the basis of the applicant's personal circumstances, the acts to which the applicant has been or could be exposed would amount to persecution or serious harm;

(d) whether the applicant's activities since leaving the country of origin were engaged in for the sole or main purpose of creating the necessary conditions for applying for international protection, so as to assess whether those activities would expose the applicant to persecution or serious harm if returned to that country;

(e) whether the applicant could reasonably be expected to avail himself of the protection of another country where he could assert citizenship.

(7) For the purpose of this regulation, where the International Protection Agency deems it relevant for the assessment of an application, the International Protection Agency shall, subject to the applicant's consent, arrange for a medical examination for the applicant concerning signs that might indicate past persecution or serious harm.

Medical examinations carried out in accordance with this sub-regulation shall be paid for out of public funds.

(8) The medical examination referred to in sub-regulation (7) shall be carried out by qualified medical professionals and the result thereof shall be submitted to the International Protection Agency as soon as possible:

Provided that the applicant's refusal to undergo such a medical examination shall not prevent the International Protection Agency from taking a decision on the application.

(9) When no medical examination is carried out in accordance with sub-regulation (7), the determining authority shall inform applicants that they may, on their own initiative and at their own cost, arrange for a medical examination concerning signs that might indicate past persecution or serious harm.

(10) The International Protection Agency shall assess the results of the medical examination along with the other elements of the application.

Personal interview.

10. (1) Before a decision is taken by the International Protection Agency, the applicant shall be given the opportunity of a personal interview with a person competent to conduct an interview.

(2) The International Protection Agency may initially provide that a personal interview on the admissibility of the application for international protection be conducted in accordance with article 24 of the Act.

(3) For the purpose of this regulation, the personal interviews on the substance of the claim shall be conducted by personnel from the International Protection Agency:

Provided that when simultaneous applications for international protection by a large number of third-country nationals or stateless persons make it impossible for the International Protection Agency to conduct timely interviews on the substance of each application, the International Protection Agency may provide that trained personnel of another authority be temporarily involved in conducting such interviews.

(4) A legal adviser shall be allowed to assist the applicant in accordance with procedures laid down by the International Protection Agency and, where entitled to, free legal aid shall be provided to the applicant.

(5) The personal interview referred to in sub-regulation (1) may be omitted where:

- (a) the International Protection Agency is able to make a positive recommendation on the basis of evidence available; or
- (b) where it is not reasonably practicable, in particular, where the International Protection Agency is of the opinion that the applicant is unfit or unable to be interviewed owing to enduring circumstances beyond his control; provided that when in doubt, the International Protection Agency may require a medical or psychological certificate to establish whether the condition that makes the applicant unfit or unable to be interviewed is of a temporary or enduring nature:

Provided that where a personal interview is not conducted pursuant to paragraph (b) or, where applicable, with the dependant, reasonable efforts shall be made to allow the applicant or the dependant to submit further information.

(6) The absence of a personal interview in accordance with this regulation shall not prevent the International Protection Agency from taking a decision on an application for international protection.

(7) Without prejudice to the provisions of regulation 20 the International Protection Agency, when deciding on the application for international protection, may take into account the fact that the applicant failed to appear for the personal interview unless it had a valid reason for such failure.

(8) A personal interview shall take place without the presence of family members unless the International Protection Agency considers it necessary for an appropriate examination to have other family members present.

(9) The personal interview shall take place under conditions which ensure appropriate confidentiality.

(10) A personal interview shall be conducted under conditions which allow the applicant to present the grounds for his application in a comprehensive manner and must:

- (a) ensure that the person who conducts the interview is sufficiently competent to take account of the personal or general circumstances surrounding the application including the applicant's cultural origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity or vulnerability;
- (b) ensure that the person who conducts the personal interview is properly trained and has the acquired knowledge of problems which might affect the applicant's ability to be interviewed.

For the purposes of this paragraph, the determining authority has to ensure that all the persons conducting the interviews have been provided with relevant training in accordance with Article 6(4)(a) to (e) of Regulation (EU) No 439/2010 as well as with relevant training established and developed by the European Asylum Support Office;

- (c) ensure the presence of an interpreter who is able to give appropriate communication between the applicant and the person who conducts the interview. The communication shall take place in the language preferred by the applicant unless there is another language which he or she understands and in which he is able to communicate clearly;
- (d) ensure whenever possible that the person conducting the interview and interpreter, be a person of the same sex if the applicant so requests, unless the International Protection Agency has reason to believe that such a request is based on grounds which are not related to difficulties on the part of the applicant to present the grounds of his application in a comprehensive manner;
- (e) ensure that the person who conducts the interview on the substance of an application for international protection does not wear a military or law enforcement uniform; and

- (f) ensure that interviews with minors are conducted in a child-appropriate manner:

Provided that, for the purpose of this regulation, the International Protection Agency may establish rules concerning the presence of third parties at a personal interview.

(11) When conducting a personal interview on the substance of an application for international protection, the determining authority shall ensure that the applicant is given an adequate opportunity to present elements needed to substantiate the application as completely as possible, including the opportunity to give an explanation regarding elements which may be missing and, or any inconsistencies or contradictions in the applicant's statements.

Reporting and
personal interviews.

11. (1) The International Protection Agency shall ensure that either a thorough and factual report containing all substantive elements or a transcript is made of every personal interview.

(2) The International Protection Agency may provide for audio or audiovisual recording of the personal interview:

Provided that where such recording has been made, the International Protection Agency shall ensure that the recording or a transcript thereof is available in connection with the applicant's file.

(3) The International Protection Agency shall ensure that the applicant has the opportunity to make comments and, or provide clarification, orally and, or in writing, with regard to any mistranslations or misconceptions appearing in the report or in the transcript, at the end of the personal interview or within a specified time limit before the International Protection Agency takes a decision, containing all substantive elements of the personal interview.

(4) For the purpose of this regulation, the International Protection Agency shall ensure that the applicant is fully informed of the content of the report or the transcript containing all substantive elements and where necessary with the assistance of an interpreter.

(5) The International Protection Agency shall request the applicant to confirm that the content of the report or the transcript correctly reflects the interview:

Provided that when the personal interview is recorded in accordance with sub-regulation (2) and the recording is admissible as evidence in the appeals procedure, the International Protection Agency need not request the applicant to confirm that the content of the report or the transcript correctly reflects the interview or to make comments on and, or provide clarification of the transcript.

(6) Where the applicant refuses to confirm that the content of the report or the transcript correctly reflects the personal interview, the reasons for his refusal shall be entered in the applicant's file.

(7) A refusal to confirm the content of the report or the transcript shall not prevent the International Protection Agency from taking a decision on the application.

(8) The applicant and his legal adviser shall have timely access to the report or the transcript and where applicable, the recording of the personal interview, before a decision on the application is taken by the International Protection Agency.

(9) When both a transcript and a recording of the personal interview has been provided, the International Protection Agency need not provide access to the recording in the procedures at first instance, but shall nevertheless provide access to the recording in the appeals procedures.

(10) Where the application is examined under accelerated procedures in accordance with article 23 of the Act, access to the report or the transcript, and where applicable, the recording may be granted at the same time as the decision is made.

12. (1) An applicant shall be allowed to consult, at his own expense, in an effective manner, a legal adviser in relation to his application for international protection at all stages of the procedure:

Free legal assistance shall include, at least, the preparation of the required procedural documents and participation in the hearing before a court or tribunal of first instance on behalf of the applicant:

Provided also that legal assistance and representation shall not be arbitrarily restricted thus hindering the applicant's effective access to justice.

(2) A legal adviser assisting and representing an applicant shall enjoy access to the information in the applicant's file, upon the basis of which a decision is or will be made and as is liable to be examined by the International Protection Appeals Tribunal insofar as the information is relevant to the examination of the application:

Provided that the legal adviser shall also enjoy access to information regarding the general situation prevailing in the countries of origin of the applicant and, where necessary, in countries through which the applicant may have transited as well as other information in relation to particular issues such as medical, cultural, religious and child-related or gender issues:

Provided further that the information referred to in the last proviso to this sub-regulation, shall be made available to the International Protection Appeals Tribunal:

Provided further that where disclosure of such information would jeopardize national security, the security of the organisations or persons providing information or the security of the persons to whom the information relates, or where the investigative interests relating to the examination of applications for international protection by the International Protection Agency or the international relations of Malta would be compromised, such access shall be precluded.

(3) The legal adviser who assists an applicant for international protection shall have access to closed areas such as detention facilities for the purpose of consulting the applicant, subject to applicable rules concerning security, public order or administrative management of the area.

(4) The International Protection Agency shall allow an applicant to bring with him to the personal interview a legal adviser. The legal adviser may only intervene at the end of the personal interview:

Provided that the International Protection Agency may, for the purpose of this regulation, provide rules covering the presence of legal advisers at all interviews in the first instance procedure:

Provided further that the absence of a legal adviser shall not prevent the International Protection Agency from conducting or continuing the personal interview with the applicant.

Withdrawal of the application.
Amended by:
XL.2020.26.
Substituted by:
L.N. 488 of 2021.

13. (1) When an applicant explicitly withdraws his application, the International Protection Agency shall decide either to discontinue the examination or reject the application. A notice to such effect shall be entered in the applicant's file.

(2) When an applicant has implicitly withdrawn or abandoned his application, the International Protection Agency shall ensure that a decision is taken to either discontinue the examination or, provided that such application is deemed to be unfounded on the basis of an adequate examination of its substance, to reject the application.

(3) If the International Protection Agency decides to discontinue the examination without taking a decision, a notice to such effect shall be entered in the applicant's file:

Provided that the International Protection Agency may assume that the applicant has implicitly withdrawn or abandoned his application for international protection when it is ascertained that:

- (a) he has failed to provide information essential to his application or has not appeared for a personal interview unless the applicant demonstrates, within a reasonable time, that his failure was due to circumstances beyond his control; or
- (b) he has absconded or left without authorisation the place where he lived or was held, without contacting the competent authorities within a reasonable time or he has not, within thirty (30) days, complied with reporting duties or other obligations to communicate, unless the applicant demonstrates that this was due to circumstances beyond his control.

(4) An applicant who reports again to the International Protection Agency after a decision to discontinue the examination, is entitled to request his case to be re-opened or to make a new application which shall not be a subsequent application. Such application shall be made in writing stating the reasons supporting such a request:

Provided that when an applicant reports again to the International Protection Agency after nine (9) months of the decision to discontinue the examination, then the applicant's case can no longer be reopened and the new application may be treated as a subsequent application.

(5) In case the examination of the application has been discontinued, the applicant's case may be reopened only once and the International Protection Agency may decide to resume the examination at the stage where the examination had been discontinued.

(6) Service of any document relating to the asylum procedure shall be made by delivery to the applicant for international protection either in person, or via electronic mail, or by post to his last known address:

Provided that when the applicant is assisted by a legal advisor or representative, service of any document relating to the asylum procedure can be made with his legal advisor or representative.

13A. The International Protection Agency may decide that international protection shall lapse where the beneficiary of international protection has unequivocally renounced his protection or has become a Maltese national. Unequivocal renunciation of protection shall include inter alia:

- (a) a written statement by the beneficiary confirming that he is renouncing his protection status; or
- (b) failure to renew international protection within a period of twelve (12) months from the lapse of the validity of said protection or its renewal:

Provided that in case a beneficiary of international protection who has unequivocally renounced his protection subsequently makes a request in person to the International Protection Agency to have his international protection status reinstated, the International Protection Agency shall review his request to determine whether international protection should once again be granted, provided that the person concerned still meets the eligibility criteria and is not excluded from international protection:

Provided further that the same provisions shall also apply to beneficiaries of Temporary Humanitarian Protection.

Decision by the International Protection Agency.

14. (1) The decision on the eligibility for refugee status or subsidiary protection status shall be made in writing following the determination of the application.

(2) The decision referred to in sub-regulation (1) shall indicate the reasons in fact and in law and in case of a negative decision, it shall also include information clarifying the reasons for such decision as well as an explanation on how such a negative decision can be challenged:

Provided that an applicant who has been recognised as being in need of international protection shall, as soon as possible after the respective refugee status or subsidiary protection status has been granted to him, have access to information on the rights and obligations relating to that status in a language which he understands or may reasonable be supposed to understand:

Provided further that if an applicant has been provided with such information at an earlier stage, the International Protection Agency need not include such information with the decision.

(3) When an application has been lodged on behalf of dependants and whenever such an application is based on the same grounds, the International Protection Agency may take a single decision, covering all dependants, unless to do so would lead to the disclosure of particular circumstances of an applicant which could jeopardise his interests, in particular in cases involving gender, sexual orientation, gender identity and, or age based persecution. In such cases, a separate decision shall be issued to the person concerned.

Confidentiality.

15. (1) All information concerning applications for international protection shall remain confidential, without prejudice to access of the applicant's file by the Minister.

(2) No information concerning an application shall, under any circumstances, be disclosed to the alleged actor of persecution or serious harm. Nor shall the Maltese authorities obtain any information from the alleged actor of persecution or serious harm in a manner that would result in such actor being directly informed of the fact that an application has been made by the applicant in question, and would jeopardise the physical integrity of the applicant or his dependants, or the liberty and security of his family members still living in the country of origin.

Right to remain.
Amended by:
XL.2020.27.

16. (1) Applicants shall be allowed to remain on the Maltese territory, for the sole purpose of the procedure, until the International Protection Agency has made a decision. This right to remain shall not constitute an entitlement to a residence permit.
